LETTERSDon't follow leaders

Sir, Your letters page has featured a lively discussion on when and whether audiences should clap at concerts. Schoolmasterly purists say only at the end. Free spirits say after any distinct section that the audience has appreciated. Jazz enthusiasts say whenever. I say that I've watched too many leaders' speeches at too many party conferences, too routinely punctuated by too-dutiful applause (20 or 30 rounds is not uncommon) to want the practice to spread.

So I propose a synthesis between the tut-tut and the hang-loose brigades. Applause that interrupts should be considered unusual, faintly embarrassing and slightly inappropriate. Then, when it happens, we'll know that it's spontaneous and passionate.

One hand clapping

Sir, Peter Lawson (letter, July 28) is correct to point out that applause after jazz solos is very much the done thing. What he fails to mention is that very often this is more a sign of relief than appreciation.

Rumble thy bellyful

Sir, Who is being applauded — the creator, or the performer?

A great work sweeps us along with it and silence is an integral part of that. Applause stops the flow and distracts us from the timeless work of art to the more ephemeral performance, whether by the singer, instrumentalist, or orchestral conductor. It is the original work that must be paramount.

Imagine you are at a production of King Lear, with a great actor in the title role. How would you like it if the audience applauded after "Blow, winds, and crack your cheeks!"?
