

Tekst 1

Letter

One Man's Meat

To the Editor:

Bill Scheft, in reviewing Steven Rinella's "Meat Eater: Adventures From the Life of an American Hunter" (Nov. 4), felt the need to hold his nose and set aside his "disdain toward hunters and hunting."

I'm wondering if Scheft feels the same disdain about eating factory-produced meat from chickens that spend their entire lives caged in boxes not much bigger than themselves and from cows on feed lots forced to eat corn products that simultaneously sicken and fatten them. One of Michael Pollan's favorite food aphorisms comes to mind: "Don't eat anything you aren't willing to kill yourself."

MIKE DEWEY
Fort Collins, Colo.

nytimes.com, 2012

Tekst 1 One man's meat

- 1p 1 What becomes clear about Mike Dewey from his letter?
- A He is a vegetarian who strongly dislikes people who eat meat.
  - B He likes Rinella's book for being honest about bio-industry practices.
  - C He supports Bill Scheft's campaign against hunting and hunters.
  - D He suspects Bill Scheft is a hypocrite when it comes to animal welfare.